As is generally known in sporting circles the Marathon run originated when the soldier Pheidippides ran from the plains of Marathon to Athens, a distance supposed to be twenty-six miles, 285 yards, in order to convey an important military message, but who dropped deaed as he finished his race. The winner of the Boston Marathon, from Ashiand to Hoston yesterday, began his running calreer fiver the course made famous in the world's military history. Barly in the race the Greek lay back, saving his strength. Arthur V. Roth of the Dorchester Club, who was the event in 1916, led the field of sixty athletes until two miles or so from the finish; then the Greek went to the front.

New York Club, Although Manager McGraw Was Not in Evidence, Score Their First Victory of the Season, Jess Barnes Doing the Twirling.

By Charles Somerville.

OUND the tocsin, ring the bells, blow the horns, bang the cymbals, toot the whistles, play the organ and let the anthem ring!

Unto the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday (I don't know what became of McGraw, not seeing him in or out of the dugout or anywhere else any time on the premises during the important event) was orn the first Victory of the season.

Kid Two-to-One. No, you could hardly call it a bouncing baby boy. But it certainly was a pleasure to see him dandling on the score board. and it has to be admitted that at no time until the conclusion of the ninth inning was he other than a delicate child. There wasn't a second from the time he got his first breath in the third inning until the end of the I'hillies' ninth when he didn's always seem in danger of falling off the score board and cracking his conk and abraising his snoot. But old Kid Two-to-One managed to stick up there on the score board as the final tally, and we all left the Polo Grounds feeling fine. And those of us who "knew places" right afterward felt even better than that

Folks who had Mike, the wildcat, on their score sheets as a dud mascot were justly inclined to rescoind their hasty judgments last night. And I'm told that Mike celebrated the birth of Victory by emerging from his hiding place of disgrace under the grandstand and chasing Casey Stengel all the way to his hotel where he spiked him with all four feet. It is probably only a rumor. Everybody picks on Casey anyway. I kind of like the nut. I like 'em when they talk guffy to the pitcher, growl at the catcher, groan at the umpire and are willing any inning to argue it out with the grandstand.

Puts fireworks into the good old game. And the gamble is a royal against a deuce high straight that that kind of a player isn't in the game just for his cakes alone.

Good boy, Casey. Go on panning pitchers, catchers and umps every time you fan out. And in this series with the Giants do us the favor to go right on fanning out. Not that we love you less, Casey, me boy, but just now we are bunching our sympathy hits in behalf of Little Ole Mac.

Jess Barnes spent a very pleasant

It took nearly five minutes to dispose of Bevo. And it seemed fully half an hour. The suspense was so great a doctor had to be sent for because a small boy in the bleachers threw a fit.

The strain was caused by the many indications that indications that Bevo would probably end up with a Big Bertha into the grandstand. For he clouted out nine fouls. Two of them hit the fence just the wrong side of the foul line for him. One went into the grandstand. Two went over the blooming stand.

"Gee!" said we all of us, "if that ird ever straightens one of them!" And then:

"Strike three!"
Thrice welcome words, O ump!
Behold us out of the basement.

From the swatstick angle Young, R. F., was the hero of the day. He was the only Glant to get two hits and they were goldarned important hits. They were the bacon finders. It was in the third he finshed his first gem, Gonzales had struck out but Barnes boosted his own game with a neat single to centre. Barnes scooted to second while the Phillie's first sacker was having all he could do handling Burns's crack at him. Then Young's bat rang as he stung a low curre into centre. Barnes shook a hot foot and crossed the plate several seconds before Young succumbed at second.

Mr. Young took up the offensive big league. And yesterday at this moment the loyal Giant rooters regarded him most uneasily. He had already smacked Barnesy for two right centre, that won him a triple, would send Williams home and tie the score.

Seventh inning when they got all they were going to get for the whole day. Williams put over the hot hit of the name—a clout to the bleachers at already smacked Barnesy for two right centre, that won him a triple, but Casey Stengel only whaled with his bat and their went back to the dugont bewailing his luck.
